Are you busy? I know in between naps I hardly have time to eat or get a snack. Life is so very busy. But not all our busyness is important. Many of us get wrapped up in stuff that is pretty meaningless. Oh, it seems important at the time. In fact, it seems downright urgent. Doesn't it seem like our days are filled with nothing but urgent things? Stuff that needs to happen RIGHT NOW? Stuff like... finding acetone to unstick your fingers after gluing them together with ultra-glue; spraying your car with air freshener after you forgot about the half-eaten burrito that rolled under your seat two weeks ago; tweeting all your friends to tell them you found the acetone and your fingers are no longer stuck together, and do they know if acetone can be used on lips? Urgent things like, filling out that job application to become the greeter at Walmart; reorganizing your spice rack; checking the cracks in your couch for change so you can go out for ice cream; or alphabetizing your cans of soup in the pantry.

Yes, there are so many things that scream out, "Take care of me now!" Life is full of unfinished things each crying out. Charles Hummel called this "The tyranny of the urgent." Hummel writes that he was told, "Your greatest danger is letting the urgent things crowd out the important."

Too often we are guilty of just that, letting the urgent crowd out the important. It's not that we have a shortage of time, but we fail to recognize what is important and what just seems important or urgent at the moment.

The phone rings...we get a text...an email appears in our inbox....do we have to immediately abandon what we are doing to respond? Can't it wait a few minutes until we accomplish the work at hand?

We can get so wrapped up in looking for the best ring-tone, or stalking Jennifer Lopez's Facebook page to see if she's changed her relationship status, that we forget to stop and take care of the important things.

There are people around us who need a word of encouragement. There are those we know in need of prayer. There is someone who needs to hear about Jesus. There are words of love that need to be spoken.

Ecclesiastes 3 says, ¹ There is a time for everything, and a season for every activity under heaven: ² a time to be born and a time to die, a time to plant and a time to uproot, ³ a time to kill and a time to heal, a time to tear down and a time to build, ⁴ a time to weep and a time to laugh, a time to mourn and a time to dance, ⁵ a time to scatter stones and a time to gather them, a time to embrace and a time to refrain, ⁶ a time to search and a time to give up, a time to keep and a time to throw away, ⁷ a time to tear and a time to mend, a time to be silent and a time to speak, ⁸ a time to love and a time to hate, a time for war and a time for peace.

May God help us always see clearly what is important and what is simply a distraction.

Ash Wednesday, on March 2, marks the beginning of the Christian period of Lent. During Lent, which is an annual period of self-examination and meditation in preparation for Easter, the music is very expressive. It is sometimes somber, and often lacking harmony in its minor-key. These songs remind us of our sinful humanity but also of God's grace and forgiveness as we prepare ourselves to hear the major notes of Easter trumpets! About the stone that was rolled away when He resurrected from death and gave all of us life eternal!

The paradox of the Lenten claim is powerful--that in dying we live. The way of the cross, the way to Easter, is through death of the "old self." In dying, we live. "During our individual and corporate journeys as God's faithful people, may we be inspired by the hymns that we sing during Lent, listening for God's voice in the music that surrounds us. May we sing with gratitude for individual insights received during our Lenten journey"

(Anne McNair, President, Presbyterian Association of musicians. Presbyterian Outlook, 2/2018).

The family of Ruby Godwin.

She was the last of our Charter Members. Ruby had served as an Elder, Deacon, and in many capacities in the Presbyterian Women and was loved by all.

Her graveside service was led by Jody McNeill on February 16. Tim Wilson provided music, along with Dawn Weathers who sang In the Garden.

During Lent, let us ...
Fast from judging others;
feast on the Christ within them. Fast from emphasis on difference; feast on the unity of life. Fast from pessimism; feast on optimism. Fast from worry; feast on trust in God's Care. Fast from personal anxiety; feast on eternal truth. Fast from discouragements; feast on hope. Feast on unceasing prayer. (excerpts from William Ward's writing)
